The New Face of Chess

17-year-old Alexandra Kosteniuk is sometimes called the Anna Kurnikova of the chess world. The International Chess Federation have asked her to be the new face of the game, which traditionally has had an image of middle-aged men wearing glasses.

Alexandra started playing chess when she was five. She learnt to play from her father, and became a grandmaster when she was only 14. Experts say that her game is one of the most exciting they have seen for a long time.

“Chess is not as popular as it should be, and I think I could help it,” Kosteniuk said last week. It is an honour for me to be described as the face of the game.” She has her own websites with pictures, poems, and the opportunity to play chess against her.

Making the game faster is another part of the campaign to make chess more popular. There are now strict time limits for making moves. Games that before lasted for hours can now take place in five minutes. The longest international tournament games, which sometimes took days, now last only four to seven hours.

Nigel Short, the British grandmaster, says, “There are a lot of attractive women in chess, but Alexandra Kosteniuk has made a very big impression. She is obviously very talented. Any sport needs attractive personalities, and I have no problem with marketing the game through her.

Part 2. Read the text and questions below. For each question, mark the correct letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet.

Are Young People Today Worse Than Ever?

‘We live in a worsening age. Young people no longer respect their parents. They are rude and impatient. They frequently do dangerous sports and have no self-control.’

Does this sound familiar? Those who think it does may be surprised to find out that this comment is actually as old as an Ancient Egyptian pyramid.

It seems that people manage to find a way to complain about the youth today from all possible sides. Whether in newspapers, television shows, or even general conversations – young people are always guilty for all the problems in the world. People may say that young people are causing more and more problems, or have become ruder than the ‘good old days’, when they showed respect to their elders. The ‘good old days’ refer to people’s nostalgic memories of the past.

However, have there ever been any ‘good old days’ when it comes to young people? Could there be any truth to the claims that today’s young generation is the worst ever? Or are these complaints something which every young generation has had to simply deal with since Ancient Egypt?

I believe that there is probably some truth to the idea that young people are more impatient than they once were. Isn't this clear, though? We live in an extremely connected world with huge amounts of information right at our fingertips. Technology has helped us to do things more quickly, so naturally, we expect things to be done more quickly. This doesn't just refer to young people though, this refers to us all!

Nevertheless, people may still argue that young people are prouder of themselves and show less care about danger than they once did. Whether this is because young people are unfairly showed in the media, or because they actually are getting worse, is up for discussion.

11. What is the writer trying to say?

- A He makes suggestions about young people and their hobbies.
- B He discusses the attitude of general public to young people.
- C He gives information about the young people of today.
- D He explains why young people of today are worse than older people.

12. What does the writer say about young people being rude and impatient in the beginning of the article?

- A This problem is very old.
- B This is a problem of modern world.
- C Young people are not polite and tolerant because they do not respect their parents.
- D Young people do dangerous sports because they want to go to Egypt.

13. What does the writer tell us about young people's wish to be quick and fast?

- A Young people are always more impatient.
- B Young people want to know huge amounts of information l.
- C Technology made our life faster and everyone is quicker today.
- D Young people want to be faster than older ones.

14. What conclusion does the writer come to about the young generation?

- A He agrees that young people are prouder of themselves and show less care about danger.
- B He claims that young people are getting worse.
- C He thinks that young people are too often shown on TV.
- D He states that people want to discuss why young people are worse than ever.

15. Which of the following did the author say about today's young generation?

- A There ever been 'good old days' when young people respected their parents and didn't do any dangerous sports.
- B Today's young people are more impatient than they once were because they are unfairly showed in the media
- C Today's young generation is the worst ever because they live in an extremely connected world.
- D The idea that young generation is rude and do not respect their parents is as old as an Ancient Egyptian pyramid.
